

HUSCH BLACKWELL

Pref-Defend

Preferential transfer claims are an unwelcome fact of life for many companies. The claims are brought against creditors by bankruptcy trustees seeking to recover monies that a debtor paid in the 90-day period before it filed for bankruptcy. When they occurred, the transfers were completely legal and made as part of normal day-to-day business operations.

Process of Product

Husch Blackwell has developed a sophisticated computer program for analyzing preferential transfer defenses. This program, coupled with our team's extensive experience defending these claims, allows us to more meaningfully advise you about steps you can proactively take to minimize your preference exposure before problems arise.

The analytics process includes the following steps:

Comprehensive analysis helps to quickly spot strengths and weaknesses in your case.

Why Us

- A highly sophisticated, self-developed computer program that analyzes the key facts to identify your optimal avoidance action defenses.
- Real-time “what if” analytics that instantly show how your exposure changes depending on the outcome of key variables.
- A proprietary forecasting model for more accurately predicting the likely settlement amount of your case.
- A team of attorneys who collectively have many decades of experience prosecuting and defending preference actions throughout the United States (including the successful resolution of many multimillion-dollar claims).
- Alternative fee arrangements (AFAs) that enable you to control litigation costs, from a law firm recognized as one of the 22 nationwide that excel at AFAs.

Solutions for where you are – and where you want to be.

From our offices in 18 U.S. cities, Husch Blackwell has the depth to scale agile teams tailored to the complexity of local matters.

Leading toward better.
